

Marla L. Lien is General Counsel of the Regional Transportation District in Denver Colorado. RTD serves the eight county Denver Metropolitan area with bus and light rail service.

After graduating from the University of Colorado and the University of Colorado School of Law, Marla clerked for a Denver District Court judge, and then worked for White and Steele, P.C. and Cooper and Kelley P.C. before going to work for RTD as an Associate General Counsel in 1990. As Associate General Counsel she worked on the development of three light rail lines, including the Southwest Corridor, the Central Corridor and the Southeast Corridor. She also assisted in the acquisition of Denver Union Station.

In 2005, Marla became General Counsel and has since been working primarily on development of the FasTracks program including property acquisition, railroad negotiations, Denver Union Station redevelopment, and the RTD Penta-P Project for the East and Gold Lines also known as "Eagle P-3."
