Dear Chair DeLauro, Ranking Member Granger, Chairman Price, and Ranking Member Diaz-Balart,

On behalf of the American Public Transportation Association (APTA), which represents an $80 billion industry that directly employs 450,000 people and supports millions of private-sector jobs, I write to urge you to appropriate at least $129 million of emergency appropriations to the Federal Transit Administration's (FTA) Public Transportation Emergency Relief program (49 U.S.C. § 5324) to help public transit agencies offset the significant costs of providing emergency transportation services, rebuilding damaged infrastructure, and replacing vehicles destroyed from recent natural disasters, including floods, hurricanes, wildfires, and earthquakes.

Over the past three weeks, APTA conducted a survey of public transit agencies and identified at least $129 million of unmet funding needs from agencies responding to and recovering from recent natural disasters. For instance, last month, President

Biden declared a major disaster under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (FEMA-4665-DR-MO) in Missouri for severe storms and flooding that severely impacted the St. Louis region. The July 2022 flooding caused approximately $40.4 million of damage to the Bi-State Development Metrolink public transit system, including destroying a light rail vehicle, two station elevators, and a signal house. The flooding also severely damaged five miles of light rail track bed and communications, signal, and fiber optics systems housed in two communications rooms and four signal houses. In addition, other public transit agencies have reported $89 million in damages to their transit systems as a result of recent natural disasters.

In response to prior natural disasters, such as Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, and Maria or the Alaska Earthquake, Congress has provided emergency funding to help public transit agencies respond to and recover from natural disasters. Accordingly, we urge you to provide at least $129 million of emergency appropriations to FTA's Public Transportation Emergency Relief program to offset public transit agencies' significant costs for disaster response, recovery, and rebuilding activities.

If you have any questions regarding this request, please have your staff contact Ward McCarragher, Vice President, Government Affairs and Advocacy, at wmccarragher@apta.com or 202.819.4895.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Paul P. Skoutelas
