“National Lessons Learned in Microtransit Implementation: Challenges and Strategies Regarding Public Transportation’s Newest Kid on the Block”

As more agencies have implemented microtransit what are the successes and limitations of this option? How cost effective is this compared to fixed-route service and what are the successes and limitations it offers to riders? In this project we will review existing case studies, interview rural and urban agency representatives, and consider microtransit as a solution for other agencies as they address post-COVID ridership recovery, staff shortages, and new technology.

Presenters:

 - Rebekka Bolt, Champaign Urbana Mass Transit District
 - Alroy Gibson, Greater Cleveland Regional Transit Authority
